VIII. Glossary

1. Reserved duty station

A duty station is called a reserved duty station when there is no international staff with an appointment of one-year or more. Reserved duty stations have no classifications.

2. Reactivated duty station

When an organization decides to field international staff for one year or more assignments to a reserved duty station, it is called a reactivated duty station. The normal procedure to reactivate a reserved duty station is to request ICSC to assign a temporary classification by the organization.

3. Temporary classification

Temporary classifications to new or reactivated duty stations are assigned by the ICSC upon request by the organizations without a formal review. A temporary classification rating assigned for a new duty station as well as reactivated duty station is only valid for a period of one year and therefore, it expires one year after the date of assignment and automatically becomes inactive. In addition, a temporary classification rating becomes inactive when a duty station no longer has internationally recruited staff assigned to it. A temporary classification is subject to a subsequent review by the Working Group for the classification of duty stations according to conditions of life and work, based on the submission of a questionnaire by the duty station within a year.

4. Transitional classification

A transitional classification indicates that a duty station is being carefully monitored by the Working Group on conditions of life and work for potential reclassification. A duty station under transitional classification must submit a full questionnaire within a year.
